College Admissions Representatives visit Henderson

Many colleges on the Eastern Seaboard send representatives to Henderson throughout the first semester. By meeting with college admissions representatives, students can not only gain valuable information about the college, but they can also increase their chances of admission by expressing their interest in that college. Students can sign up for a pass to any information session by putting their name and homeroom in the white sign-up book in the counseling lobby. College representatives are constantly being added to the schedule so keep checking back for updates.

For a current list of upcoming visits, check our website under the "News" section on the home page.
